REPORT ON THE SUBJECT-MATTER OF BILL C-4, A SECOND ACT TO IMPLEMENT CERTAIN PROVISIONS OF THE BUDGET TABLED IN PARLIAMENT ON MARCH 21, 2013 AND OTHER MEASURES

Introduction

On 5 November 2013, the Senate authorized the Standing Senate Committee on National Finance (the Committee) to examine the subject-matter of all of Bill C-4, A second Act to implement certain provisions of the budget tabled in Parliament on 21 March 2013 and other measures, introduced in the House of Commons on 22 October 2013, in advance of the said bill coming before the Senate. In addition, to help the Committee with its study, other Senate committees examined certain provisions of Bill C-4.

- The Standing Senate Committee on Banking, Trade and Commerce examined Divisions 2, 3, 9 and 13 of Part 3;
- the Standing Senate Committee on Energy, the Environment and Natural Resources examined Divisions 7 and 14 of Part 3;
- the Standing Senate Committee on Transport and Communications examined Division 8 of Part 3;
- the Standing Senate Committee on Foreign Affairs and International Trade examined Divisions 4 and 16 of Part 3;
- the Standing Senate Committee on Social Affairs, Science and Technology examined Divisions 5, 10 and 11 of Part 3; and,
- the Standing Senate Committee on Legal and Constitutional Affairs examined Division 19 of Part 3.

As part of its study on Bill C-4, which took place from 19 November 2013 to 3 December 2013, the Committee held a total of ten meetings.

Over the course of these meetings on all of the bill's 472 provisions, the Committee heard from 33 witnesses from 4 departments and 2 federal agencies, as well as representatives from 7 organizations outside the federal government. The Committee also received a report from each of the six Senate committees that examined various divisions of Part 3 of the bill, following which the chairs and vice-chairs of those Senate committees were invited to appear before the Committee to explain their conclusions.

The Committee also received briefs from three organizations outside the federal government that did not appear before the Committee. The names of these organizations can be found in Appendix B.

The Committee considered all the testimony that was heard and all the briefs that were submitted. Following is a summary of the bill including the 19 Divisions contained in Part 3, as well as a list of witnesses who appeared before Senate committees in Appendix A.

Essential Services
Proposed language	Current language	Changes
Clause 294 repeals the definition of “essential service agreement”, amends the definition of “essential service” and repeals subsection (2). “essential service” means a service, facility or activity of the Government of Canada that has been determined under subsection 119(1) to be essential.	Section 4 [...] “essential services agreement” means an agreement between the employer and the bargaining agent for a bargaining unit that identifies (a) the types of positions in the bargaining unit that are necessary for the employer to provide essential services; (b) the number of those positions that are necessary for that purpose; and (c) the specific positions that are necessary for that purpose. “essential service” means a service, facility or activity of the Government of Canada that is or will be, at any time, necessary for the safety or security of the public or a segment of the public. [...]	The concept of an essential service agreement is being repealed from the Public Service Labour Relations Act (PSLRA). References to an “agreement” will no longer be necessary. There is no change in the definition to essential services (subsection 119(1)) as they continue to be “essential because it is or will be necessary for the safety or security of the public or a segment of the public.” Concepts found in paragraphs 4(2) (a) and (b) have been modified and are now found in the proposed subsection 125(2).

	(2) A position that is necessary for the employer to provide essential services for the purposes of paragraph (a) of the definition “essential services agreement” in subsection (1) includes a position the occupant of which is required, at any time, (a) to perform the duties of the position that relate to the provision of essential services; or (b) to be available during his or her off-duty hours to report to work without delay to perform those duties if required to do so by the employer.
Clause 305 replaces section 119 to 134 119. (1) The employer has the exclusive right to determine whether any service, facility or activity of the Government of Canada is essential because it is or will be necessary for the safety or security of the public or a segment of the public. (2) Nothing in this Act is to be construed as limiting the employer’s right under subsection (1). 120. (1) The employer has the exclusive right to designate the positions in a bargaining unit that include duties that, in whole or in part, are or will be necessary for the employer to provide essential services, and the employer may exercise that right at any time. (2) Nothing in this Act is to be construed as limiting the employer’s right under subsection	119. This Division applies to the employer and the bargaining agent for a bargaining unit when the process for the resolution of a dispute applicable to the bargaining unit is conciliation. 120. The employer has the exclusive right to determine the level at which an essential service is to be provided to the public, or a segment of the public, at any time, including the extent to which and the frequency with which the service is to be provided. Nothing in this Division is to be construed as limiting that right. 121. of the employer's use of overtime and the equipment used in the employer's operations.

(7) If the application relates to a specific position to be identified in the essential services agreement, the employer's proposal in respect of the position is to prevail, unless the position is determined by the Board not to be of the type necessary for the employer to provide essential services.

124. The essential services agreement comes into force on the day it is signed by the parties or, in the case of an essential services agreement that the employer and the bargaining agent are deemed to have entered into by an order made under paragraph 123(3)(b), the day the order was made.

125. An essential services agreement continues in force until the parties jointly determine that there are no employees in the bargaining unit who occupy positions that are necessary for the employer to provide essential services.

126. (1) If a party to an essential services agreement gives a notice in writing to the other party that the party giving the notice seeks to amend the essential services agreement, the parties must make every reasonable effort to amend it as soon as possible.

(2) If a collective agreement or arbitral award is in force, the notice may be given at any time except that, if a notice to bargain collectively has been given with a view to renewing or revising the collective agreement, the notice may only be given during the 60 days following the day the notice to bargain collectively was given.

127. (1) If the employer and the bargaining agent are unable to amend the essential services agreement, either of them may apply to the Board to amend the essential services agreement. The application may be made at any time but not later than

(a) 15 days after the day a request for conciliation is made by either party; or

(b) 15 days after the day the parties are notified by the Chairperson under subsection 163(2) of his or her intention to recommend the establishment of a public interest commission.

(2) The Board may delay dealing with the application until it is satisfied that the employer and the bargaining agent have made every reasonable effort to amend the essential services agreement.

(3) The Board may, by order, amend the essential services agreement if it considers that the amendment is necessary for the employer to provide essential services.

	(4) The order may not require the employer to change the level at which an essential service is to be provided to the public, or a segment of the public, at any time, including the extent to which and the frequency with which the service is to be provided. (5) The Board may, for the purpose of identifying the number of positions that are necessary for the employer to provide an essential service, take into account that some employees in the bargaining unit may be required by the employer to perform their duties that relate to the provision of the essential service in a greater proportion during a strike than they do normally. (6) For the purposes of subsection (5), the number of employees in the bargaining unit that are necessary to provide the essential service is to be determined (a) without regard to the availability of other persons to provide the essential service during a strike; and (b) on the basis that the employer is not required to change, in order to provide the essential service during a strike, the manner in which the employer operates normally, including the normal hours of work, the extent of the employer's use of overtime and the equipment used in the employer's operations.

(7) If the application relates to a specific position to be identified in the essential services agreement, the employer's proposal in respect of the position is to prevail, unless the position is determined by the Board not to be of the type necessary for the employer to provide essential services.

128. An amendment to an essential services agreement comes into force on the day the agreement containing the amendment is signed by the parties or, in the case of an amendment made by order of the Board under subsection 127(3), the day the order was made.

129. (1) If, at any time while an essential services agreement is in force, a position identified in it becomes vacant, the employer may identify a position of the same type as a replacement position. If the employer does so, the employer must file a notice of replacement with the Board and provide a copy to the bargaining agent.

(2) On the filing of the notice, the replacement position is deemed to be a position identified in the essential services agreement and the position it replaced is deemed to be no longer identified.

130. (1) The employer must provide every employee who occupies a position that has been identified in an essential services agreement as being a position that is necessary for the employer to provide essential services with a notice informing the employee that the employee occupies such a position.

(2) A notice given under this section remains valid so long as the employee continues to occupy the position unless the employer notifies the employee that the position occupied by the employee is no longer necessary for the employer to provide essential services.

131. Despite any provision in this Division, if either the employer or the bargaining agent is of the opinion that a temporary amendment to an essential services agreement, or its suspension, is necessary because of an emergency but the parties are unable to agree to do so, either of them may, at any time, apply to the Board for an order temporarily amending, or suspending, the agreement.

132. Unless the parties otherwise agree, every term and condition of employment applicable to employees in a bargaining unit in respect of which a notice to bargain collectively is given that may be included in a collective agreement and that is in force on the day the notice is given remains in force in respect of any employee who occupies a position that is identified in an essential services agreement and must be observed by the employer, the bargaining agent for the bargaining unit and the employee until a collective agreement is entered into.

	133. The Board may, on the application of either party, extend any period referred to in this Division. 134. Either party to an essential services agreement may file a copy of it with the Board. When filed, it has the same effect as an order of the Board.

(5) If the Tribunal finds the complaint to be substantiated, it may order the Commission to revoke the appointment or not to make the appointment, as the case may be, and to take any corrective action that the Tribunal considers appropriate.

78. (1) When, in the case of an advertised internal appointment process, the Commission has made or proposed an appointment, a person who is an unsuccessful candidate in the area of selection determined under section 34 and who has been determined by the Commission not to meet the essential qualifications for the work to be performed as established by the deputy head under paragraph 30(2)(a) or the qualifications considered by the deputy head under subparagraph 30(2)(b)(i) to be an asset for that work may, in the manner and within the

period provided by the regulations, make a complaint to the Tribunal that the Commission (a) has abused its authority under subsection 30(2) in making that determination in relation to those qualifications; or (b) has failed to assess the complainant in the official language of the complainant's choice as required by subsection 37(1). (2) No complaint may be made under subsection (1) in respect of an appointment under subsection 15(6) (reappointment on revocation by deputy head), section 40 (priorities — surplus employees), subsection 41(1) or (4) (other priorities), section 73 (reappointment on revocation by Commission) or section 86 (reappointment following Tribunal order), or under any regulations made under paragraph 22(2)(a). (3) If the Tribunal finds the complaint to be substantiated, it may order the Commission
