Message from the Principal Clerk of Committees

Committees are at the core of the legislative and policy review work of the Senate, and every year well over a thousand Canadians contribute to their work by appearing as witnesses. Other Canadians follow the work of committees by watching the webcasts or CPAC broadcasts, or by reading the many committee documents, including transcripts of meetings, minutes and reports on the parliamentary website. Senators spend an enormous amount of time in committee outside of the sittings of the Senate itself, and the Committees Directorate is very proud to provide the procedural and administrative support required to help senators to achieve their committee objectives.

Activity levels in 2017–2018 reflect the effect of having a fiscal year uninterrupted by a prorogation or dissolution. As can be seen in the numbers of meetings held, witnesses heard, and hours spent in meetings, senators and their committees were quite busy. The individual committee summaries included in this annual report demonstrate that a great deal of valuable work was conducted by committees in the course of 2017–2018.

Of particular note for this past fiscal year, the Senate found unique ways in which to account for a growing cohort of independent senators without disrupting studies and work already in progress. With the adoption of a sessional order in November 2017, the Senate again accounted for rapid changes in relative numbers among the two party caucuses and the parliamentary group of independent senators. Despite this realignment of membership and leadership among many of the committees, the work of committees has continued apace and, like the fiscal year before, hit peak activity indicator numbers across the board.

Senate committees have continued the heavy workload they undertook in 2016–2017 in the new fiscal year and the two new special committees on the Arctic and the Charitable Sector respectively are now fully functional and adding to the total workload being shouldered by senators.

Overview of Activities and Expenditures

Structure of Senate Committees

During fiscal year 2017–2018, the directorate provided administrative, procedural, informational and other support to Senate committees, which include:

- 16 standing committees (and 8 subcommittees);
- 2 standing joint committees (composed of members of the Senate and of the House of Commons);
- 3 special committees; and
- the Committee of Selection.

The size of committees, their general areas of study and the number of members required for quorum are set under rules 12-3, 12-6 and 12-7 of the Rules of the Senate.

Pursuant to the orders of the Senate of December 7 and December 12, 2016, the Committee of Selection adopted a report on December 14, 2016 increasing the size of committees by three senators. These sessional orders expired on October 31, 2017. Following the adoption by the Senate on November 7, 2017 of a motion concerning the membership of committees, the three additional seats on each committee were removed on November 19, 2017 and a second deputy chair position was added to several committees.

The Standing Committee on Internal Economy, Budgets and Administration and the Standing Committee on Rules, Procedures and the Rights of Parliament are administered through other offices.

Committee Activities

Committees account for much of the activity of the Senate. On average, nearly fifty bills are examined and over fifty special studies are undertaken each year. While all committees must respect the Rules of the Senate and the Senate Administrative Rules, there are significant variations between committees with respect to how they undertake, organize and carry out their work. In addition, some committees focus almost exclusively on legislation, while others give special studies most of their attention.

Trips

Every year, a number of trips are undertaken to gather testimony at local and regional levels. Committees hold public hearings in locations throughout Canada, and undertake fact-finding trips both within Canada and abroad. Committee travel provides senators with the opportunity to better familiarize themselves with the issues they are studying and to obtain evidence and information that cannot be obtained in Ottawa.

Fact-finding missions conducted within Canada and abroad do not include public hearings. As such, they are not considered official proceedings and no transcripts are published. The information gathered, however, is still valid to the committee's inquiry and can be used in a report of the committee.

Highlights of Special Study Reports

Standing Committee on Foreign Affairs and International Trade (AEFA)

A Turning Point in Canada-Argentina Relations?
(Thirteenth Report [final] tabled in the Senate on June 1, 2017;
Sessional Paper No. 1/42-1141 S)

The committee was interested to learn more about Argentina’s efforts to move away from its “troubled century” and implement an “ambitious” program of political and economic reform. In this context, the committee sought to take stock of converging values and interests between Canada and Argentina, and the new administration’s priority of reconnecting South America’s second largest economy with the world.

The report presented seven recommendations to the Government of Canada. It concluded that the Government of Canada should update its relationship with Argentina by developing strategies that deepen political and commercial bilateral relations and that foster constructive change for the benefit of the country’s and the region’s long-term stability and prosperity. The implementation of such strategies would reinforce the shared values of the two countries regarding governance, human rights, and openness to the world at a pivotal time in Argentina’s history.

As relations intensify and “a new era in our relations with Latin America” opens up, Canada’s status as a compelling bilateral and regional partner would be increasingly secured. Equally important, Canada would be diversifying its political and commercial partners, a necessary objective that has become prudent and urgent now more than ever given the prevailing uncertainty about Canada’s existing trade relations and agreements.

North American Neighbours: Canada and Mexico—Cooperation in Uncertain Times (Fifteenth Report [final] tabled in the Senate on June 14, 2017;
Sessional Paper No. 1/42-1197 S)

This report offers an assessment of the continued relevance of the committee’s 2015 report (North American Neighbours: Maximizing Opportunities and Strengthening Cooperation for a more Prosperous Future) based on the testimonies heard in Ottawa and Mexico City. It suggests that despite the current context of uncertainty related to the North American trilateral relationship, opportunities for a more strategic, meaningful engagement between Canada and Mexico continue to exist, and that such occasions hold tremendous potential benefit not only mutually, but also for North America.

The Deepening Crisis in Venezuela: Canadian and Regional Stakes
(Sixteenth Report [interim] tabled in the Senate on July 20, 2017;
Sessional Paper No. 1/42-1244 S)

The committee held hearings in late May and early June 2017 on the deepening political, economic and humanitarian crisis in Venezuela. The purpose of these meetings was to provide committee members with timely information on the escalating situation as well as updates on recent regional dynamics since the committee tabled its 2016 report on Venezuela.
The committee made recommendations and underscored the importance of the Government of Canada undertaking a leadership role in addressing Venezuela’s humanitarian crisis and ensuring that humanitarian assistance is delivered to those most in need.

Standing Committee on Agriculture and Forestry (AGFO)

Market Access: Giving Canadian Farmers and Processors the World

(Seventh Report [final] tabled in the Senate on May 29, 2017; Sessional Paper No. 1/42-1088 S)

The Canadian agriculture and agri-food sector plays an important role in the Canadian economy and accounts for 6.6% of Canada’s gross domestic product. Taking into account the importance of agricultural exports to the Canadian economy, the Standing Senate Committee on Agriculture and Forestry felt it important to undertake a study on international market access priorities for the Canadian agricultural and agri-food sector.

Over the course of this study, the committee had the privilege to talk to many of those involved in the export of Canadian agricultural products. These are products of which we can be proud as Canadians; the Canada brand is one that is sought after and appreciated globally.

A Growing Concern: How to Keep Farmland in the Hands of Canadian Farmers

(Tenth Report [final] tabled in the Senate on March 9, 2018; Sessional Paper No. 1/42-1866 S)

The family farm has been the backbone of rural Canada for generations. In the course of its previous work, the committee heard concerns regarding the rising costs of farmland in Canada, including how families could pass their farms from generation to generation and the ability of new entrants to afford to buy land.

The committee felt it would be remiss if it did not undertake a study on the acquisition of farmland in Canada and its potential impact on the farming sector to address these concerns.

The first part of the report focused on the use of farmland and changes in farmland values. The second part of the report explained changes in farmland values and their impact on farmland availability. The final part of the report outlined ways to ensure access to farmland for future generations of Canadians.

Standing Committee on Banking, Trade and Commerce (BANC)

National Corridor: Enhancing and Facilitating Commerce and Internal Trade

(Fifteenth Report [final] tabled in the Senate on June 21, 2017; Sessional Paper No. 1/42-1232 S)

On September 28, 2016, the Senate authorized the committee to undertake a study on the development of a national corridor in Canada as a means of enhancing and facilitating commerce and internal trade. In addition to the committee’s ongoing focus on Canada’s economy, of which commerce and trade are a part, interest in this particular topic stems from an earlier study on issues pertaining to internal trade barriers.

The June 2017 report, National Corridor: Enhancing and Facilitating Commerce and Internal Trade, noted that inadequate east-west transportation infrastructure limits the extent to which Canadian exporters can access tidewater and contained four recommendations for the federal government. In a response to the Committee's report, issued in November, federal transport minister Marc Garneau said that the government “agrees with the committee’s finding that improving national transportation and communication networks will encourage economic growth and facilitate exports.”

Current and Emerging Issues of the Banking Sector and Monetary Policy of the United States

(Sixteenth Report [final] tabled in the Senate on June 28, 2017; Sessional Paper No. 1/42-1245 S)

Members of the committee met with representatives from the U.S. financial sector, federal agencies, regulators, think tanks and trade associations during their study on the current and emerging issues of the banking sector and monetary policy of the United States and their four-day fact-finding trip to New York, New York and Washington, D.C. in May 2017. The committee’s June 2017 report provided a snapshot of the important issues facing the economies of both countries in the then-early days of the Trump administration, including a dialogue on current and emerging issues regarding U.S. financial sector regulation, NAFTA, U.S. monetary policy, and other vital issues related to Canada-U.S. economic relations.

Credit Unions and the Use of the Terms “Bank”, “Banker” and “Banking”

(Seventeenth Report [interim] tabled in the Senate on October 31, 2017; Sessional Paper No. 1/42-1670 S)

The committee held two meetings concerning credit unions and the uses of the terms “bank”, “banker” and “banking” in the fall of 2017. The committee heard testimony regarding the Office of the Superintendent of Financial Institutions’ (OSFI) June 2017 advisory about the Bank Act’s prohibition on the use of certain terms by financial service providers that are not federally regulated banks. The committee’s October report made a recommendation to the Department of Finance Canada and OSFI and highlighted its anticipation to further examine the matter during the next statutory review of the Bank Act and the federal financial sector framework in 2019.

Standing Committee on Internal Economy, Budgets and Administration (CIBA)

Audit and Oversight

(Twenty-First Report [interim] presented in the Senate on November 28, 2017)

In the June 2015 Report of the Auditor General of Canada to the Senate of Canada: Senators’ Expenses, twenty-two recommendations were made, seven of which dealt with auditing and oversight. The subcommittee was tasked to review the recommendations and to consider industry best practices in establishing an audit mechanism and a possible appropriate oversight structure. It recommended to the Standing Committee on Internal Economy, Budgets and Administration the establishment of a Standing Committee on Audit and Oversight and the creation of an internal auditor responsible to the committee. The recommendations dealing with changes to the Rules of the Senate and changes to the Parliament of Canada Act were presented to the Senate in the twenty-first report.

Parliamentary Translation Services

(Twenty-Seventh Report [interim] tabled in the Senate on March 27, 2018; Sessional Paper No. 1/42-1924 S)

The Standing Committee on Internal Economy, Budgets and Administration tasked a group of senators to review the Service Agreement between the Senate of Canada and the Translation Bureau of Public Services and Procurement Canada for Language Services. The Bureau provides the translation and interpretation services offered to the Senate, its committees, senators’ offices and the Senate Administration. Following interviews and a survey, the Advisory Working Group on Parliamentary Translation Services reported to the committee with eleven recommendations which were adopted. The group’s report was subsequently tabled in the Senate.

Standing Committee on Energy, the Environment and Natural Resources (ENEV)

Decarbonizing Transportation in Canada

(Tenth Report [interim] tabled in the Senate on June 22, 2017;
Sessional Paper No. 1/42-1241 S)

The committee is presently examining the effect that Canada’s greenhouse gas (GHG) reduction targets will have on five sectors of the Canadian economy: electricity, oil and gas, transportation, buildings, and emission-intensive, trade-exposed industries—mostly heavy industries that compete in international markets such as steel and cement manufacturing.

This second interim report addressed the transportation sector. At the time of its release, the committee had held 45 hearings and heard from 120 witnesses on the topic.

Greenhouse gas emissions from the transportation sector accounted for almost a quarter (23%) of all GHGs in the country, second only to the oil and gas sector as the largest source of GHG emissions in Canada. Decarbonizing transportation in Canada—by deploying increasing numbers of alternative vehicles, improving vehicle fuel efficiency, shifting away from petroleum-based fuels to cleaner alternatives, and by designing low emission transportation alternatives through community and infrastructure investment, for example—raises the potential for much lower domestic GHG emissions across the economy. It brings challenges as well. The report raises questions and discusses the federal role in reducing transportation GHG emissions.

Standing Committee on Legal and Constitutional Affairs (LCJC)

Controlling Foreign Influence in Canadian Elections

(Seventeenth Report [final] tabled in the Senate on June 8, 2017;
Sessional Paper No. 1/42-1179 S)

The Standing Senate Committee on Legal and Constitutional Affairs reviewed the Canada Elections Act and concluded that the Act does not sufficiently protect Canadian elections from foreign interference and that the existing regime that regulates third-party advertising during election periods requires modernization in order to better ensure transparency and electoral fairness. In this report, the committee recommends that the Government of Canada review and revise the Act to better protect electoral fairness and prevent foreign interference.

Delaying Justice is Denying Justice:

An Urgent Need to Address Lengthy Court Delays in Canada

(Nineteenth Report [final] tabled in the Senate on June 14, 2017;
Sessional Paper No. 1/42-1195 S)

Delays in criminal proceedings have become a significant problem in Canada as many criminal cases are taking too long to reach a final disposition. When courts find that an accused’s constitutional right to a trial within a reasonable time has been breached (as guaranteed by section 11(b) of the *Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms), they may order a stay of proceedings. A stay ends the process without a completed trial on the merits of the case, which affects Canadians’ confidence in our justice system and can be very hard on victims. Between February 3, 2016 and March 9, 2017, the Standing Senate Committee on Legal and Constitutional Affairs heard testimony from 138 witnesses on ways to improve the fairness and efficiency of the system. It also received dozens of written submissions and travelled to Vancouver, Calgary, Saskatoon, Montreal, and Halifax to hear local perspectives and learn best practices that could help resolve these complex issues.

In its final report of this study, the committee made 50 recommendations to address delays and modernize the justice system, of which 13 have been identified as priorities. The committee identifies steps that the federal Minister of Justice, provincial governments, the judiciary and many other participants in the justice system must take to address this crisis.

Standing Committee on National Finance (NFFN)

Getting Ready: For a New Generation of Active Seniors

(Nineteenth Report [interim] deposited with the Clerk of the Senate on June 27, 2017; Sessional Paper No. 1/42-1242 S)

The committee started to examine the financial implications and regional considerations of Canada’s aging population and found that the growing number of people who need care—either at home or in hospital—may require a change in the way the federal government allocates funds to the provinces, territories and First Nations governments, especially since the aging population is unevenly spread across provinces. The committee is urging the federal government to adopt a national seniors strategy to control the rising costs associated with an aging population while ensuring elderly Canadians get the care they need.

Smarter Planning, Smarter Spending: Ensuring Transparency, Accountability and Predictability in Federal Infrastructure Programs

(Twentieth Report [second interim] deposited with the Clerk of the Senate on July 6, 2017; Sessional Paper No. 1/42-1243 S)

The committee’s second interim report on the design and delivery of the government’s multi-billion dollar infrastructure funding program made seven recommendations aimed at improving the government’s infrastructure program. The committee calls on the government to publicly release all data on infrastructure projects that are approved for funding, except for cases where national defence and security are involved. The federal government’s new infrastructure program needs to be open to scrutiny and have rules that everyone can understand to ensure that Canadians get the best value for their money.

Fair, Simple and Competitive Taxation: The Way Forward for Canada

(Twenty-Fourth Report [final] deposited with the Clerk of the Senate on December 13, 2017; Sessional Paper No. 1/42-1764 S)

After an extensive study and cross-Canada consultations with witnesses from many sectors including financial services, healthcare, agriculture, academia, government, small business and labour groups, the committee concluded that the changes proposed to the Income Tax Act by the Minister of Finance during the summer of 2017 were not detailed enough, leading to unintended consequences. Income sprinkling and passive income proposals were of particular concern to private corporation owners. The committee recommended that the government withdraw its proposed changes and undertake a comprehensive review of Canada’s tax system.
Standing Senate Committee on Official Languages (OLLO)

Horizon 2018: Toward Stronger Support of French-Language Learning in British Columbia
(Fourth Report [final] tabled in the Senate on May 31, 2017; Sessional Paper No. 1/42-1132 S)

The committee’s report, Horizon 2018: Toward Stronger Support of French-Language Learning in British Columbia, made 17 recommendations on which the federal government should act in order to live up to its obligations under the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms and under the Official Languages Act. The government of British Columbia, with federal government support, should also work with French-language education stakeholders to implement the report’s recommendations.

The committee’s recommendations apply to francophone schools, French immersion programs and British Columbia’s French-speaking community, including francophones and francophiles, and the support to which they are entitled.

According to this report, the federal government must commit to fostering the full recognition and use of French, one of Canada’s two official languages, as well as to supporting the development of British Columbia’s francophone community. It is essential for the federal government, with the support of its provincial counterpart, to oversee the implementation of constitutionally-guaranteed rights by ensuring citizen’s access to French first-language education, from early childhood to post-secondary. It is also necessary to give the opportunity for all young Canadians to become bilingual by giving them access to French immersion programs.

Modernizing the Official Languages Act: The Views of Young Canadians
(Seventh Report [interim] tabled in the Senate on February 16, 2018; Sessional Paper No. 1/42-1863 S)

In a report entitled Modernizing the Official Languages Act: The Views of Young Canadians, members of the Senate Committee on Official Languages praised Canadian youth for their commitment and passion for French and English. Young people between the ages of 14 and 24 were eager to share their aspirations to live a rich, bilingual life.

Nevertheless, the Official Languages Act is silent when it comes to young people. Part VII of the Act—which addresses the advancement of English and French, and the enhancement of official language minority communities—contains no specific provisions with regard to Canadian youth. They want the federal government to consult them when measures are being considered that could affect them.

This report is the first of six that the committee will produce during its study. Senators intend to consult with a total of five segments of the population before releasing a final report with specific recommendations for the federal government in 2019, the 50th anniversary of the adoption of the Act.
Standing Committee on National Security and Defence (SECD)

Military Underfunded: The Walk Must Match the Talk
(Tenth Report [interim] tabled in the Senate on April 13, 2017; Sessional Paper No. 1/42-1047 S)

On April 21, 2016, the Senate authorized the Standing Senate Committee on National Security and Defence to examine and report on issues related to the Defence Policy Review undertaken at that time by the government. This interim report addressed issues surrounding the funding of the Canadian Forces, challenges surrounding military procurement and risks to Canada’s critical infrastructure. Among other recommendations, it argued that Canada should increase its military spending to 2% of GDP and change its military procurement system in order to make the process faster and more efficient. This interim report also opined that the government needs to do more to coordinate cyber defences and protect critical infrastructure. Finally, it argued that there is a need for cross-party consensus on military issues, as well as for quadrennial defence, national security and foreign policy reviews. The committee heard from 66 witnesses in Ottawa from May to December 2016. This interim report, released in April 2017, contained 16 recommendations for the federal government.

Reinvesting in the Canadian Armed Forces: A Plan for the Future
(Eleventh Report [final] tabled in the Senate on May 8, 2017; Sessional Paper No. 1/42-1086 S)

On April 21, 2016, the Senate authorized the Standing Senate Committee on National Security and Defence to examine and report on issues related to the Defence Policy Review undertaken at that time by the government. The report sets out a plan as to how the government can effectively address the strategic challenges which confront Canada and members of the Canadian Armed Forces in the 21st century. It takes into account the fact that Canada is a continent-sized country with complex defence requirements, including the longest coastline in the world and three oceans to protect. The committee heard from 66 witnesses in Ottawa from May to December 2016. The report, released in May 2017, contained 30 recommendations for the federal government.

Standing Committee on Social Affairs, Science and Technology (SOCI)

Challenge Ahead: Integrating Robotics, Artificial Intelligence and 3D Printing Technologies into Canada’s Healthcare System
(Eighteenth Report [final] tabled in the Senate on October 31, 2017; Sessional Paper No. 1/42-1663 S)

In October 2017, the committee concluded its study on the role of automation in the healthcare system. Over the course of the 12 month study, the committee held 12 meetings, conducted two site visits, and heard from 28 witnesses including researchers, research funders, ethicists, entrepreneurs and healthcare providers.

Witnesses told the committee that robotics, artificial intelligence and 3D printing could have the potential to reduce healthcare costs and make diagnoses more quickly and accurately. These technologies could also anticipate some illnesses, enabling proactive treatment. The committee also heard evidence that artificial intelligence outperforms healthcare specialists in the diagnosis and classification of certain kinds of cancer and other conditions. Similarly, robotic surgeries were described as safer, less invasive and more accurate than traditional methods.
In its report, the committee highlights some of the revolutionary changes that are coming to Canada's healthcare system. The committee concludes that although these changes have the potential to bring great benefit to patients, physicians and healthcare workers, there are nonetheless important considerations that these innovations will require, such as ethical and privacy questions, the need for renewal of the healthcare delivery system, impacts on homecare and remote and rural healthcare delivery, potential workforce adjustments, along with the need for regulatory oversight.

In total, the committee made 14 recommendations, its main one urging the federal government to capitalize on Canada's leading-edge artificial intelligence research and to bring together all stakeholders on a regular basis, to monitor the progress of integration, and the ongoing issues raised in its wake.

Standing Committee on Transport and Communications (TRCM)

Driving Change: Technology and the Future of the Automated Vehicle
(Ninth Report [final] deposited with the Clerk of the Senate on January 29, 2018; Sessional Paper No. 1/42-1785 S)

In response to a request from the Minister of Transport, the committee began its study on the regulatory and technical issues related to the deployment of connected and automated vehicles in February 2017. The automotive sector is in a period of rapid technological change, with computers, software, sensors and connected networks being increasingly used to make vehicles safer for drivers and passengers alike. These technologies will come with substantial benefits. For example, the reduction of greenhouse gas emissions and fuel consumption; improvements in transportation safety and security; increase in efficiency, mobility, and accessibility; and the creation of economic opportunities for advanced technology jobs and investments in Canada. On the other hand, concerns in terms of job losses, privacy, cybersecurity, urban sprawl and infrastructure have been raised regarding these same technologies.

Given both the potential benefits and the challenges of these technologies, as well as the pressing need for government action, the committee made 16 recommendations to the federal government to ensure that Canada successfully deploys connected and automated vehicles.
Standing Committee on Foreign Affairs and International Trade (AEFA)

A. General Information

During the 2017–2018 fiscal year, the committee studied four bills and tabled three special study reports. In the spring of 2017, the committee continued its extensive study of Bill C-30, An Act to implement the Comprehensive Economic and Trade Agreement between Canada and the European Union and its Member States and to provide for certain other measures. It reported the bill without amendment but with observations. Shortly afterwards, the committee reported on its study of Bill C-31, An Act to implement the Free Trade Agreement between Canada and Ukraine, and on the subject matter of those elements contained in Division 1 of Part 4 of Bill C-44, An Act to implement certain provisions of the budget tabled in Parliament on March 22, 2017 and other measures.

In June 2017, the committee finalized and tabled two special study reports which concluded the committee’s studies on recent political and economic developments in Argentina, and on Canada–Mexico bilateral cooperation in the context of a changing North American neighborhood. Both special studies led the committee to travel abroad on fact-finding missions during the previous fiscal year. In addition to these special study reports, the committee tabled an interim report in July on the deepening crisis in Venezuela.

In the fall of 2017, the committee adopted a new order of reference and was authorized by the Senate to study and report on the impact and utilization of Canadian culture and arts in Canadian foreign policy and diplomacy, and other related matters. Due to the parliamentary calendar and the committee’s reorganization in November, the committee began meeting on this study only later in November. Over the fall and winter, the committee heard from 45 witnesses consisting of representatives from the government, industry stakeholders, artists and firms, small businesses, artistic associations, academics, and researchers. The committee continued its study into the following fiscal year.

In March 2018, the committee began its study of the subject-matter of Bill C-45, An Act respecting cannabis and to amend the Controlled Drugs and Substances Act, the Criminal Code and other Acts, insofar as it relates to Canada’s international obligations.

A. General Information

During the fiscal year, the committee considered three bills and the subject matter of one budget bill. It also engaged in three special studies and studied general matters related to the domestic financial system.

As part of its study of Bill S-224, An Act respecting payments made under construction contracts, the committee held six meetings and heard from 24 witnesses including the Parliamentary Secretary to the Minister of Public Services and Procurement. In its April 2017 report, the committee adopted the legislation with amendments.

The committee held five meetings and heard from 12 witnesses, including the Minister of Innovation, Science and Economic Development as part of its study of Bill C-25, An Act to amend the Canada Business Corporations Act, the Canada Cooperatives Act, the Canada Not-for-profit Corporations Act and the Competition Act. In its December 2017 report, the committee adopted the legislation with amendments.

As part of its study of Bill S-237, An Act to amend the Criminal Code (criminal interest rate), the committee held four meetings and heard from 11 witnesses. In its twentieth report, the committee adopted the legislation with amendments.

In May and June 2017, the committee studied the subject matter of those elements contained in Divisions 3, 8, 18, and 20 of Part 4 of Bill C-44, an Act to implement certain provisions of the budget tabled in Parliament on March 22, 2017 and other measures. The committee held six meetings and heard from 29 witnesses, including the Minister of Finance and various officials from five federal departments and agencies, as well as representatives from think tanks, pension plans and the economic development, business, academic and financial services sectors. In its June report the committee highlighted the testimony related to the various divisions it examined and offered commentary on a few areas of concern.

In October 2017, the committee was authorized by the Senate to study and report on issues and concerns pertaining to cyber security and cyber fraud. Over the fall and winter, the committee heard from 32 witnesses consisting of representatives from government, industry associations, cybersecurity experts and firms, small businesses, chambers of commerce, think tanks, academics, and researchers. The committee continued its study into the following fiscal year.

Also in October 2017, the committee was authorized by the Senate to examine and report on issues pertaining to the management of systemic risk in the financial system, domestically and internationally. Due to the legislative agenda and the committee’s reorganization in November, the committee has held no meetings on this study to date but intends to continue the study in the new fiscal year.

Beginning in January 2018, the committee launched a study of the effects that competitive economic challenges may have on Canadian importers and exporters. The committee also expressed an interest in exploring measures the Government could take to ensure that Canadian businesses maintain their global competitiveness. The committee continued its study in the following fiscal year with the goal of making recommendations to government about ways to identify opportunities and to mitigate competitive challenges to Canadian businesses.
As part of the committee’s ongoing examination of the present state of the domestic and international financial system, the committee also heard from the Governor and Deputy Governor twice during the fiscal year regarding the Bank of Canada’s Fall and Spring Monetary Policy reports.

Standing Committee on Ethics and Conflict of Interest for Senators (CONF)

A. General Information

The committee on Ethics and Conflict of Interest for Senators is established under the Rules of the Senate to be responsible for all matters relating to the Ethics and Conflict of Interest Code for Senators and to exercise general direction over the Senate Ethics Officer. The committee’s responsibilities are further detailed in the Code. The Code was adopted by the Senate in 2005, and was amended since on four occasions: May 2008, May 2012, and April and June 2014. All those amendments resulted from recommendations made by the committee.

The membership of the committee is determined by a process that differs from that of all other committees. In accordance with the provisions of the Code, two members are elected by secret ballot in the respective caucuses of the government and opposition. A fifth member is then chosen by these four members. The chair of the committee must be chosen by at least four members of the committee. However, pursuant to a sessional order adopted December 7, 2016, and continued November 7, 2017, membership has been altered to be two members of the Conservative Party of Canada, one from the Senate Liberals, and two senators not belonging to a recognized party. The members of the committee are constituted as an Intersessional Authority during prorogation and dissolution periods and until a new committee is appointed in the new parliamentary session.

Standing Committee on Energy, the Environment and Natural Resources (ENEV)

A. General Information

During the fiscal year, the committee engaged in one special study and examined four bills.

In 2017–2018, the committee continued its study on the effects of transitioning to a low carbon economy. It is the committee's intention to make recommendations to assist the federal government in meeting its carbon reduction objectives by no later than December 31, 2018.

For this special study, the committee held 38 meetings and heard from 96 witnesses in total, consisting of government officials, electric utilities and industry representatives, energy experts, university students, major energy users and environmental organizations. On June 22, 2017, the committee released a second interim report on the transportation sector in Canada. It followed the release of a first interim report, on the electricity sector, in March 2017. The committee hopes to release three other interim reports and a final report that will contain recommendations to the federal government.

As part of this study on the transition to a low carbon economy, the committee participated in one fact-finding mission during the fiscal year. From April 30 to May 5, 2017, the committee conducted site visits and held fact-finding meetings in Eastern Canada, visiting St. John's, Newfoundland and Labrador, Summerside, Prince Edward Island, Saint John, New Brunswick and Halifax, Nova Scotia.

During the fiscal year, the committee studied four bills. First, in April 2017, the committee completed its consideration of Bill S-229, An Act respecting underground infrastructure safety. It heard from two witnesses and held two meetings on the subject. The committee adopted two amendments, one to clarify that territories were included when the bill referred to provinces and another to add some clarification to the English version of the bill.

In May 2017, the committee examined Bill C-18, An Act to amend the Rouge National Urban Park Act, the Parks Canada Agency Act and the Canada National Parks Act. After hearing from nine witnesses, including the Minister of Environment and Climate Change, government officials and stakeholders, the committee presented its report to the Senate, without amendments.

In June 2017, the committee examined Bill C-238, An Act respecting the development of a national strategy for the safe and environmentally sound disposal of lamps containing mercury. The committee heard from five witnesses and reported the bill back to the Senate without amendment but with observations. The committee is hoping that the federal government will lead by example when it comes to recycling all mercury-containing lamps in federal workplaces and Crown-owned buildings when they reach their end of life.

Finally, in December 2017, the committee examined Bill C-17, An Act to amend the Yukon Environmental and Socio-economic Assessment Act and to make a consequential amendment to another Act. The committee held two meetings and heard from 17 witnesses, including the Government of Yukon, mining associations, First Nations, federal government officials and the Minister of Crown-Indigenous Relations and Northern Affairs. The committee adopted the bill without amendments but included observations in its report. The committee was concerned with the lack of timeline when it comes to replacement regulations. The committee recommended that the Government of Canada and its partners in this process draft and implement replacement language expeditiously and that the federal government should provide the required funding and capacity support.

Standing Committee on Legal and Constitutional Affairs (LCJC)

A. General Information

The vast majority of the Standing Committee on Legal and Constitutional Affairs’ work entails the consideration of legislation, although the committee sometimes undertakes in-depth special studies on areas related to its mandate.

During this fiscal year, after an extensive review and hearings across Canada which began in 2016 involving 139 witnesses including judges at all levels of court, Crown lawyers, defence lawyers, the police and those affected directly by the criminal justice system, the committee tabled a comprehensive report that made 50 recommendations to address delays and modernize the justice system, of which 13 have been identified as priorities. The committee identified steps that the federal Minister of Justice, provincial governments, the judiciary and many other participants in the justice system should take to address this crisis. Key recommendations included the need to appoint Superior Court judges on the day of retirement of a judge; and the need for judges to improve case management, by imposing deadlines and challenging unnecessary adjournments.

In addition, the committee tabled a report entitled Controlling Foreign Influence in Canadian Elections as a result of the committee’s review of the Chief Electoral Officer’s report on the October 19, 2015 federal election as well as Elections Canada’s conduct of the election. The committee’s report made five recommendations aimed at preventing foreign influence in Canada’s future elections and ensuring greater electoral fairness and more transparency regarding third-party election advertising expenses. A key conclusion in the report was the recommendation that the Government of Canada review and revise the Canada Elections Act to better protect electoral fairness and prevent foreign interference.

In the spring, the committee began its consideration of Bill C-46, An Act to amend the Criminal Code (offences relating to conveyances) and to make consequential amendments to other Acts as well as a pre-study of Bill C-45, An Act respecting cannabis and to amend the Controlled Drugs and Substances Act, the Criminal Code and other Acts.

Over the course of the fiscal year, the committee studied four government bills and one private members bill.

Standing Committee on National Finance (NFFN)

A. General Information

The committee was first created in May 1919 as the Committee on Finance, and, in 1968, it was renamed the Committee on National Finance. The committee’s work is focused on matters relating to government spending. As stated in the Rules of the Senate (rule 12-7(5)), the committee has a mandate to examine matters related to federal estimates generally, including the public accounts and the reports of the Auditor General and government finance.

The committee has historically been, and continues to be, one of the Senate’s busiest committees. A large part of the committee’s work is devoted to a review of the government’s estimates and issues arising out of that review.

Study of the Estimates and Legislation

As is customary, much of the committee’s attention was focused on the estimates, which outline the government’s expenditure plans. The committee held meetings to examine various aspects of the government’s planned expenditures for 2017–2018 and 2018–2019 including the Main Estimates 2017–2018, Supplementary Estimates (A), 2017–2018, Supplementary Estimates (B), 2017–2018, Supplementary Estimates (C), 2017–2018, and a novelty, the 2018–2019 Interim Estimates.

Two bills were also reported by the committee:

- Bill C-44, An Act to implement certain provisions of the budget tabled in Parliament on March 22, 2017 and other measures, with amendment;
- Bill C-63, A second Act to implement certain provisions of the budget tabled in Parliament on March 22, 2017 and other measures, without amendment.

With respect to Bill C-44, the committee undertook the study of its subject matter before its introduction in the Senate. This allowed the committee to hear many witnesses on the bill prior to it being read for the first time in the Senate.

A. General Information

In 2017–2018, the Standing Committee on Rules, Procedures and the Rights of Parliament presented five substantive reports. The fifth report addressed practices relating to omnibus bills in the Senate. The committee did not recommend any changes to the Rules in light of the availability of a procedure for dividing any type of bill, as well as the other mechanisms available to facilitate the study of complex bills.

The sixth report dealt with the case of privilege relating to leaks of the Auditor General’s report on the audit of senators’ expenses. The committee made a number of recommendations and observations with respect to confidentiality, including: improved training and education; the clarity and consistency of internal policies regarding the security of information; the definition of in camera; and obligations for third party contractors. The report was adopted with amendments by the Senate on June 20, 2017. Some of the recommendations direct further action by the Standing Committee on Internal Economy, Budgets and Administration.

The seventh report recommended amendments to the Rules regarding recognized parties and recognized parliamentary groups, including time limits for debate and membership changes for committees. The eighth report recommended changes to the Rules for the Committee of Selection regarding the proportionality of its membership in relation to recognized parties and recognized parliamentary groups in the Senate. Finally, the ninth report recommended changes to the Rules stemming from the coming into force of the Service Fees Act, which replaced the former User Fees Act.

Standing Committee on National Security and Defence (SECD)

A. General Information

The Standing Senate Committee on National Security and Defence continued to hear witnesses on its general mandate to examine and report on Canada’s national security and defence policies, practices, circumstances and capabilities.

In early 2016, the Minister of National Defence wrote to invite the committee to contribute to the Defence Policy Review which the government was undertaking. Specifically, the committee was invited to comment on Canada’s involvement in peace support operations. In response, the committee undertook a broader study of the issues related to the Defence Policy Review and tabled a report in the previous fiscal year entitled UN Deployment: Prioritizing commitments at home and abroad, which spoke directly to the minister’s inquiry with respect to peace support operations. This work carried into this fiscal year, where it tabled two reports addressing broader issues of overall funding and support for the Canadian Armed Forces entitled Military Underfunded: The Walk Must Match the Talk, followed closely by Reinvesting in the Canadian Armed Forces: A Plan for the Future.

Finally, the committee conducted legislative work, including the consideration of Bill C-22, An Act to establish the National Security and Intelligence Committee of Parliamentarians and to make consequential amendments to certain Acts, which it reported without amendment, but with observations; Bill C-23, An Act respecting the preclearance of persons and goods in Canada and the United States, which it reported without amendment; and Bill S-233, An Act to amend the Customs Act and the Immigration and Refugee Protection Act (presentation and reporting requirements), which it reported with amendments. The committee also examined and reported on the subject matter of those elements contained in Divisions 12 and 19 of Part 4 of Bill C-44, An Act to implement certain provisions of the budget tabled in Parliament on March 22, 2017 and other measures.

A. General Information

The Standing Senate Committee on Transport and Communications has the mandate to examine legislation and study issues related to transport and communications by land, air, water, and space. It also deals with matters relating to tourist traffic, common carriers, shipping and navigable waters. During the fiscal year, the committee focused primarily on two matters: Bill C-49, the Transportation Modernization Act; and the special study on the regulatory and technical issues related to the deployment of connected and automated vehicles (CV and AV).

The automotive sector is in a period of rapid technological change. The Committee undertook the CV and AV study, at the request of the Minister of Transport, to identify the key regulatory, policy, and technical issues that need to be addressed for Canada to capture and maximize the potential benefits of this technology. The committee heard from over 78 witnesses from across Canada and the United States, including federal departments and agencies, think tanks, academia, industry, consumer groups, privacy groups, and unions. Senators also attended the Conference Board of Canada's conference on automated vehicles in Toronto and visited research facilities and test centres in the University of Waterloo and at QNX in Kanata, Ontario. In addition, the committee participated in an autonomous shuttle demonstration on Parliament Hill, which allowed members to experience for themselves the level of readiness of this new technology and gauge its potential uses and impacts in Canadian communities. The final report was released in January 2018. It makes 16 recommendations to the federal government which will help build a coordinated national strategy to successfully deploy these technologies.

In addition to the CV and AV study, in December 2017 the committee started its consideration of Bill C-49, An Act to amend the Canada Transportation Act and other Acts respecting transportation and to make related and consequential amendments to other Acts. This bill proposed several measures to strengthen the efficiency and safety of the transportation system, including a framework to establish new regulations regarding air passenger rights. The committee heard from 76 witnesses from across the air, rail and marine sectors, and reported the legislation to the Senate with 18 amendments in March 2018.

A. General Information

The mandate of the Standing Joint Committee for the Scrutiny of Regulations is defined by the Statutory Instruments Act, which authorizes it to review and scrutinize certain statutory instruments made after December 31, 1971. In addition to its statutory order of reference, the Senate and the House of Commons have, since 1980, renewed an order of reference at the beginning of each session authorizing the Joint committee to study the means by which Parliament can better oversee and control the government regulatory process. Taken together, the statutory and sessional references of the committee provide it with a broad jurisdiction to inquire into and report on most aspects of the federal regulatory process.

In the 2017–2018 fiscal year, 17 meetings were held and the committee heard from 11 witnesses.

Part III – Committee Expenditures

Detailed Committee Expenditure Report for 2017–2018

Senate committees may apply for a budget to, for example, travel or to engage the services of writers/editors or communications advisors. Budgets must be approved by the Senate (column A). In addition, certain expenditures are charged to a centralized budget managed by the Committees Directorate. These include videoconferencing fees and travel expenses for witnesses, which are both included in column B below. Other expenses which are charged to this centralized budget are included in column C below. These are general postage, coffee/tea/juice and working meals at committee meetings in Ottawa, and committee travel immunization charges.
